World's Fair Contest Closes; Judges To Examine Replies

While they have not been counted, it was estimated Friday that close to 500 letters had been received in The Constitution's Secrets Century of Progress Contest.

Some couple, joint authors of the best of those letters, will receive a free trip to the Century of Progress, or World's Fair, at Chicago, as well as a three-day free stay at the Stevens hotel, largest in the world—all as the guests of Mary Pickford. It was her picture, "Secrets," current at Loew's Grand theater last week, that inspired the contest.

The judges will begin work on the letters on Monday, the contest having closed at 6 o'clock Friday night. They are: Luke Arnold, secretary to Mayor Key; Morris Ewing, president of the Atlanta Real Estate Board; Roy LeCraw, past president of the Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce, and Mrs. Rix Stafford, society editor of The Constitution.

They will make known their decision in The Constitution on Sunday week.

In the picture a married couple had a stormy time of it during the earlier period of their marriage, but in their mature years found and disclosed the secrets of marital happiness.

Mary Pickford, in conjunction with The Constitution, invited all married couples to divulge their secrets of wedded happiness. As an inducement the free trip to Chicago was offered. The response was quick and many letters were received. In Sunday's Constitution there will be printed an itinerary of the trip, as well as an account of some of the many things that the successful contestants will see at the fair.

'Scottsboro' Negroes Are Returned to Cells

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 28.—(AP)—The nine negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case" at 11 a. m. today were returned to their cells, after a promise to Warden F. L. Erwin that they would cause no more trouble and would pay for any damage caused.

The negroes had been locked in the day room, in which they were placed yesterday for exercise and which they refused to leave late yesterday after sending a printed card, "Freedom for the Scottsboro boys," carrying their demands for better treatment.

Warden Erwin confined his remarks to a simple statement that they had voluntarily returned to their cells with promises to be tractable.

The negroes had armed themselves with pieces of iron ripped from plumbing and lighting fixtures in the day room, and offered to pay for this damage.

HUGE BRITISH LOAN OBTAINED BY PARIS

Question of December-June Debt Payments to U. S. Brought to Fore.

PARIS, April 28.—(AP)—The question of paying the December and June debt installments to the United States was brought sharply to the fore in government quarters today, at the time that the French treasury borrowed 30,000,000 pounds ($114,000,000), from a group of English banks.

The loan was made in England because the French market cannot absorb a bond issue now, the finance ministry explained, and would have the effect, it was said, of protecting gold stores in the Bank of France.

The conclusion of the economic talks in Washington between Premier Edouard Herriot and President Roosevelt and Finance Minister Georges Bonnet's announcement of the English loan were both described semi-officially as being pleasing to the government.

The announcement of the transaction said "the French treasury has concluded an operation under the terms of which it has contracted with a group of English banks a loan of 30,000,000 pounds for six months at 1-1/2 per cent."

The possibility of payment at the end of three months was provided for, and negotiation of securities given the banks by the treasury was forbidden.

Financial quarters expect the British banks to obtain francs from the British equalization fund, which has been a heavy purchaser of the franc in order to keep the pound rate low.

Meanwhile, Premier Edouard Daladier is known to be anxious to get the December 15 defaulted payment of about $10,000,000 off the books and he is strongly hopeful that M. Herriot will bring such assurances from the White House conversations as to the coming world economic conference was sought to satisfy parliament's demands.

Here Are Main Provisions Of Farm, Inflation Bill

the 1 per cent annual amortization requirement of the land banks would be suspended for five years.

It also provides $200,000,000 through the Reconstruction Corporation to refloat other farm debts under the recent bankruptcy law's composition sections.

Loans 50 Millions to Levees, Irrigation and Drainage Districts.

It authorizes $50,000,000 as a loan from the treasury to land banks' paid-in surplus to help them refinance debts, and $15,000,000 additional to take place of interest lost by reduction; $50,000,000 from the Reconstruction Corporation for loans to levee, drainage and irrigation districts, to refinance debts and meet irrigation districts' operation and maintenance costs; and $100,000,000 from Reconstruction Corporation for loans to joint stock land banks to permit their liquidation and to allow them to cut interest to 5 per cent and to suspend foreclosures for two years.

Loans would be under the supervision of the farm loan commissioner or any other agent designated by President Roosevelt, and would be made either directly to the farmer or through the present farm loan association system.

Remonetizes Silver at Ratio To Be Set by the President.

The controlled inflation contemplates first an expansion up to $300,000,000 of credit through open market purchases of government securities by federal reserve banks, and if this is not adequate in getting money into circulation and lifting prices, the president would have the option of:

Directing the issuance of $3,000,000,000 in treasury notes or new currency to purchase outstanding government obligations and provide for appropriations to redeem 4 per cent of the notes annually for 25 years.

Lowering the gold content of the dollar by not more than 50 per cent, either by proclamation or by international agreement looking to a stabilization of world currencies and exchanges.

Accepting up to $200,000,000 in silver at not more than 50 cents an ounce as payments on war debts due this country in the next six months; to issue silver certificates against the silver and coin, the metal to meet any demands for redemption of the certificates.

Remonetizing silver at a ratio with gold fixed by the president and free coinage of both gold and silver at such ratio.

Refinances Mortgages on Farms At Saving of 1-1/2 Per Cent.

Several safeguards are thrown around the inflation plan and democratic chiefs have announced it would be used "presently." They do not expect the gold content clause to be resorted to, and have announced the $3,000,000,000 credit section would be the first employed to increase circulation.

Under the credit clause the federal reserve board, with the approval of the treasury secretary, may require the reserve banks to take such action as may be necessary to "prevent undue credit expansion."

Further, the board could regulate the expansion by directing the increase or decrease of reserve balances against deposits as the situation warranted.

Liberalization features of this section provide exemption from the present graduated tax on reserve deficiencies and from the requirement of automatic increase in discount rates charged by reserve banks.

Reserves aiming to raise prices of basic farm commodities, the farm section provides for refinancing the farm mortgage indebtedness, estimated at $8,500,000,000. This section provides for a $2,000,000,000 federal land bank bond issue, with a 4 per cent interest rate to be guaranteed by the government.

OGDEN MILLS ASSAILS INFLATION, FARM BILLS

INDIANAPOLIS, April 28.—(AP)—Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury, in a speech tonight before the Indiana Republican Editorial Association assailed as unsound the Roosevelt administration's inflation, farm relief and labor measures but said "if we are to follow these policies it is the duty of all to contribute as best each may to their success."

"All measures," he said, "proposed by the administration that will promote the common welfare are entitled to my support, irrespective of party, though in the interest of sound legislation the opposition should subject every bill to the tests of analysis and debate."

"Personally, I would waive all objections as to details if the main purpose be constructive, and, recognizing that the administration has a clear mandate from the people, I would resolve doubtful questions in its favor and be willing to subordinate my own judgment. Moreover, under present conditions, I recognize the force of the argument in favor of experimentation."

"But we cannot be expected to sacrifice our deepest conviction and principles to be subservient to the principles upon which our government is founded, and to run counter to the spirit of our institutions, then we must speak out."

Analyzing the farm relief bill and the labor control measures proposed by Secretary Perkins for incorporation in the 30-hour work week bill, Mills said:

"Under the terms of these two bills the executive branch of the United States government is not only to take over the taxing power, but is to have the right to fix prices of some of the necessities of life, to control the production of basic commodities, to license business, to regulate the hours of work, to establish the wage scales and to fix the production of every individual industrial establishment in the country. . . . It is unconstitutional."

ing war debt payments in silver. He argued it means a 30 per cent reduction in these obligations.

"We are writing off a part of the debt," George declared. "If we are going to do that, let us do it openly."

"If there is one thing the democratic party has spoken on it is on cancellation of debts," the Georgia senator told the senate. "Nearly every man up for election last year opposed cancellation."

All powers voted the president are discretionary. There is nothing mandatory in the bill.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY URGED TO REFORM

W. D. Anderson, Macon, Says Industry Highly Respected by Solons.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 28.—(AP)—The American Cotton Manufacturers' Association heard warnings today that it must put its own house in order if federal intervention is to be avoided, but that present legislation before congress has not been written without the interests of the textile industry in mind.

B. B. Gossett, of Charlotte, president of the association, said in his annual address that the association must move voluntarily to check over production and other unsound practices if governmental regulation is to be avoided.

He urged greater attention to merchandising and distribution, and closer regard for seasonal demand as against headlong competitive production.

William D. Anderson, of Macon, Ga., a manufacturer, described the work of the association's legislative committee, headed by William C. Venable, and said:

"The textile industry is better known and better respected by both members of congress and heads of departments of the federal government than ever before in its history. The legislation now under discussion and which will probably be passed before the close of the special session of congress has been written and amended with the views of the textile industry in mind."

The cotton manufacturers also heard Arthur S. Dewing, professor of finance at Harvard University, discuss the banking situation. He urged a reform in fundamental practices in finance instead of stricter government supervision.

Principal speakers on the program at tonight's annual banquet were Judge John J. Parker, of the district court of appeals, and Brigadier General B. D. Hall, son-in-law of President Roosevelt; Fred A. Rakestraw, of Philadelphia, president of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association; S. M. Beattie, president of the South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association; Magruder Dent, president of the Association of Cotton Textile Manufacturers of New York; George Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute; T. M. Marchant, vice president of the Southern Railway, and C. McD. Davis, vice president of the Atlantic Coast Line.

Other prominent guests included W. S. Dowell, president of the New York Cotton Exchange; Elmer Oliver, vice president of the Southern Railway, and C. McD. Davis, vice president of the Atlantic Coast Line.

It is in the human suffering of widows and orphans. The maintenance of the army and navy that we have today is a reasonable and prudent insurance against suffering on the part of future generations."

Guests at the speakers' table tonight included J. W. Robert Jr., assistant United States treasurer; Curtis B. Hall, son-in-law of President Roosevelt; Fred A. Cotton Shippers Rap Price Raising Measure By Closed Banks Passed

NEW ORLEANS, April 28.—(AP)—A resolution condemning the "price-lifting features" of the farm bill will be adopted here today by the American Cotton Shippers' Association.

The resolution said it recognized the "sincerity of the administration" but "held out no hope to the cotton farmers that attempted artificial regulation of prices or artificial control of supply," will work.

NEW ORLEANS LEADER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

NEW ORLEANS, April 28.—(AP)—J. Emile Jarreau, prominent industrialist and financier, was found dead from a bullet wound in his home here today. Police said a full investigation by the coroner's office was being made.

Bill to Speed Payments By Closed Banks Passed

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—The Bulky bill to speed up payments to depositors in closed banks by broadening the law for borrowing from national banks was passed today by the senate.

The bill removes a limitation preventing a national bank from lending more than 10 per cent of its capital and surplus to one borrower, if the borrower is a corporation, partnership, or other entity.

It is designed to permit new banks organized to take over closed institutions to make large loans to the closed banks for payments to depositors.

This is the procedure being followed by the treasury in liquidating closed banks.

Story of Georgia Forests Told at Association Meet

Enough Forest Land in State, Says Lufburrow, To Meet All-Time Pulp-Wood Demand

By MARK TEMPLE, Associated Press Staff Writer.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 28.—A comprehensive outline of Georgia's pulp wood possibilities is to be laid before a group of New England and Canadian paper manufacturers here early next week, according to plans of the Georgia Forestry Association, which met here today.

Georgia has approximately 23,000,000 acres of forest lands capable of supplying any amount of pulp wood for all time, B. M. Lufburrow, head of the state forestry department, told the convention.

This area, Lufburrow said, also provides enough timber lands to attract lumber interests and insure sufficient stumpage to further the pulpwood industry. Fire prevention, he declared, is the paramount problem at present.

Thomas J. Hamilton, editor of the Augusta Chronicle, urged the forestry association to adopt measures for increasing the timber supply, thereby adding to the state's wealth. He pointed out that Georgia's timber industry is the backbone of the state's economy.

Reforestation of abandoned lands and watersheds in the state to prevent erosion was advocated by the Augusta editor, as was the establishment of game preserves.

Eugene Adams, a vocational agriculture student from Milledgeville, was another speaker on the program of today's session. In his address he said that Georgia forests, if cared for properly, "would practically eliminate unemployment in the state."

Young Adams said the rural youth should know "our civilization is founded on wood, that our very scheme of things presupposes a continuous source of fuel wood, lumber, paper pulp and numerous other products of the forest."

C. C. Kuehn was heard at the morning session in a discussion of the principles of management and forestry as a business. He also discussed timber production and methods involving its improvement in Georgia.

T. Guy Woolford, president of the association, said at a noonday luncheon that during a recent trip to Washington he had asked that the government come to the aid of the experimental wood pulp plant of Dr. Charles Herty.

The sum of $100,000 was requested for this purpose, he said. The entire delegation to the convention visited Dr. Herty's plant this afternoon, and Herty, who is a nationally known scientist and inventor, spoke of his experimental work at a dinner tonight.

Jack Williams, editor of the Waycross Journal-Herald, and Henry T. McIntosh, editor of the Albany Herald, originally scheduled to speak tonight, were unable to reach the city, Mr. Woolford said.

KENTUCKY POSTMASTER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH
MIDDLESBORO, Ky., April 28.—(AP)—Shot in the head with a pistol, John M. Miller, 56, Middlesboro postmaster, was found dead today in the basement of the postoffice building. Investigators expressed belief he committed suicide.

4 YOUTHFUL BANDITS BOUND OVER TO COURT
Four youthful bandits whom police said had confessed to a series of robberies in Atlanta were bound over to superior court by Recorder A. W. Callaway Friday afternoon following a parade of robbery victims who identified two of the men as gunmen who held them up. Jack Coppedge and Theodore Corley, 19-year-old robbers, and Floyd Collins were bound over under $5,000 bond, while Norman Sherman was placed under $2,000 bond.

Sherman and Collins, 19 and 20 years old, respectively, were arrested Friday morning in Thomaston and officers said they confessed they were implicated with Corley and Coppedge in the robberies. The last arrest was made by Lieutenant L. W. Evans and Detectives D. L. Taylor and W. D. Martin.

Negro Hailed as Hero For Rescue From Well

CORDELE, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—This city hails James Nelson, negro, as a hero for saving Dorothy Mae Brockman, 6, from drowning in a well.

The walls caved in as she played at the brink and she plunged 20 feet into deep water.

Nelson, living near by, heard other children crying for help and lowered a bucket and rope, manhandling instructions for the child to take hold. The bucket reached the bottom after she had been hanging over the edge for some time but she heard the negro and obeyed. She was drawn out uninjured.

MORAVIAN MEMORIAL PRESENTED SAVANNAH
SAVANNAH, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The story of a daring band from central Europe braving the wilderness to plant the Moravian church in the new world was written in stone today and unveiled for the first time.

Right Reverend J. Kenneth Pohl, of Winston-Salem, N. C., bishop of the southern province of the church, headed a delegation of Moravians that came here to dedicate a monument to their forefathers in the form of a granite altar.

It was presented the city of Savannah in memory of the little group that tired of religious persecution in Austria and Germany and found freedom in Georgia in General Oglethorpe's colony of Georgia.

The first contingent, about half a dozen in number, reached Savannah in 1733, only two years after the colony was founded. They and others who joined them maintained a mission for the Indians and persistently gave the colony examples in the art of living at peace with one's neighbors.

But the Moravians' sojourn in Georgia was short-lived. In 1740 others of the sect came from Europe to settle in Pennsylvania and their fellow churchmen in the south joined them.

The inscription on the monument reads: "In memory of the Moravian colonists in Savannah (1733-1740) who maintained a mission to the Indians. This memorial is presented to the city of Savannah by the Wachovia Historical Society of Winston-Salem, North Carolina."

A brass band composed of Moravian boys from Winston-Salem came with the churchmen and played during the ceremony.

Others from Winston-Salem were Rev. Douglas Rights, pastor of Trinity church and president of the Wachovia Society; Rev. Edmund Schwarz, pastor of Calvary church; Rev. Edgar Holton, pastor of Ardmore church; Miss Adelaide Fries, archivist of the Moravian church; Miss Anna Rights and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hede.

Winston-Salem is headquarters of the southern province of the church. Salem, the old quarter of the city, was born from the wilderness not long after the Moravians began their migration to America.

The presence of the brass band here today in keeping with customs of the church, for band music is a part of the Moravians' religious ceremony. Boys of old Salem are taught to play some sort of brass instrument the moment they are big enough to hold a horn.

YOUNG METHODISTS TO STAGE A DEBATE
A debating contest, the exact date to be announced later, was announced on Friday by Kendrick K. Kelley Jr., president of the Methodist Young People's Union. Any league member is eligible to register a team, and May 9 will be the last day of registration.

The final debate will be held at the July business meeting. The subject will be agreed on by the competing teams. A loving cup will be awarded to the winning league, and a $250 goldpiece to each debater on the winning team.

THOMASVILLE HANGAR FILLED FOR ROSE SHOW

Myriads of Gorgeous Blooms Attract Great Crowds to Display.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The booming whistle at the municipal water and light plant echoed over the city at 5 a. m. today, signaling it is rose show day in Thomasville, and at 11 a. m. the annual festival opened with due ceremony.

Thousands of people poured into the huge hangar at Vose air field where the choice roses of a city that prides itself on roses formed a landscape of blooming beauty.

The show is directed by the Thomasville Garden Club and financed by the Thomasville Chamber of Commerce. Miss Irene Davis is president of the garden club.

EMBEZZLEMENT LAID TO STATE LEGISLATOR
JESUP, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The Wayne county grand jury has returned an indictment against State Representative L. W. Rogers, former sheriff, charging embezzlement.

The indictment charges he embezzled approximately $2,000 from funds held serving as sheriff. He furnished bond of $2,500.

In a statement Rogers denied the charge and said Wayne county was due him more than the alleged shortage. He said more than $5,000 was due him in insolvent costs.

A. M. E. CONFERENCE IN THIRD-DAY SESSION
CEDARTOWN, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The Rome district conference of the A. M. E. church, holding daily sessions in the First A. M. E. church here, in its third day's session heard favorable reports from each charge by the representative laymen and pastors.

Church membership shows an appreciable increase and churches have been renovated and well organized for better future results along all lines, declared the reports.

The following subjects were discussed: "The Successful Pastor," by Dr. J. T. Wilkinson; "The Power of Pastoral Influence," Dr. J. L. Shropshire; "The Pastor, the Representative of the Kingdom of God," Dr. J. S. Downs; "The Pastor's Religious Background," Rev. T. Jones; "The Psychology of Religion," Dr. E. D. Curry; Professor F. M. Gordon, Cave Spring; Rev. J. W. Queen, J. A. McDaniel, L. P. Pickett and Z. Wright, of Rome, addressed the conference today.

The noonday sermon was preached by Rev. S. J. Greene, Douglasville. The following laymen were elected to the annual conference, L. D. Hamilton, F. R. Jones, M. G. Latham and Frank Cook.

The missionary anniversary was observed here Friday, F. L. Hadley, district president, made the principal address. The sermon was by Rev. P. M. Tolbert, Austell.

FINANCE COMPANIES MEET IN ATLANTA
The quarterly meeting of the Georgia Association of Personal Finance Companies was held Friday at the Atlanta Athletic Club. W. A. Ward Jr., Atlanta lawyer, and A. E. Madison, general manager of the Master Loan Service, were the main speakers.

Mr. Ward spoke on "Highlights of Recent Amendments to the Bankruptcy Law," and Mr. Madison spoke on "How to Analyze a Bankruptcy Schedule." J. B. Smith, general manager of the Community Finance Company, presided.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—Curtis D. Dall, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, and John J. Edgerton, both members of the New York Stock Exchange, have formed a new firm under the name of Curtis Dall & Co., it was announced today.

Dall has been an independent broker on the floor of the stock exchange since his retirement from the exchange firm of Goodbody & Co. several years ago. Recently he purchased memberships in the New York Cotton Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Talmadge Beer Stand Pleases Worth Jury

SYLVESTER, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—Governor Talmadge's refusal to call a special session of the legislature to legalize beer sales has the endorsement of the Worth county grand jury.

"We, the grand jury of Worth county, commend the Hon. Eugene Talmadge for his refusal to call an extra session of the legislature to legalize the sale of beer in Georgia," read the report.

"Believing, as we do, that the home is the unit of the state and that the increased consumption of intoxicants in the home will not add to the social, economic, moral or spiritual values of the home, and believing that the sale of beer will profit no one save the brewers, we express ourselves as being opposed to its legalized sale in Georgia."

EATON WILL ADDRESS SCHOOL PRESS GROUP
ATHENS, Ga., April 28.—Foster Eaton, manager of the Atlanta bureau of the United Press Association, will address the sixth annual convention of the Georgia Scholastic Press Association at the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism Friday, May 5, John E. Drewry, director, has announced.

Mr. Eaton, who is an alumnus of the Pulitzer School of Journalism of Columbia University and a former New York newspaperman, will speak from his wide experience in the field of journalism.

J. S. Pope, city editor of the Atlanta Journal, and an active newspaperman here on this occasion. Besides Mr. Pope, other speakers for the Scholastic Press convention already announced include Dr. E. M. Coulter, managing editor of the Georgia Historical Quarterly and author of "College Life in the Old South" and Dr. L. L. Hendren, dean of the university.

CHILD FATALLY HURT UNDER FREIGHT TRAIN
NEWNAH, Ga., April 28.—Clein Pyles, 7, was run over by a Central Georgia freight train at Sargent, near Newnaah, today at 12:30 p. m. Both legs were severed. The child was rushed to the Newnaah hospital, where he died about 4 o'clock. He is survived by his father, L. C. Pyles, four sisters and two brothers.

SENATE GIVEN NAMES OF ROBINS AND GORE
WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today sent to the senate the nominations of Warren Delano Robbins, of New York, as minister to Canada, and Robert Hayes Gore, Florida publisher, as governor of Puerto Rico.

The appointment of Robert M. Cooper as collector of internal revenue for South Carolina was advocated today by the state's two democratic senators—Byrnes and Smith.

PAGEANT AT SAVANNAH TO BE RESHOWN TODAY

Bicentennial Celebration To Reach Climax in Brilliant Monroe Ball.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The second showing of Savannah's great pageant depicting the 200 years of the history of Georgia, will be presented in municipal stadium tomorrow afternoon, and the bicentennial celebration here will reach its climax in the Monroe ball at the Hotel De Soto Saturday night.

Hundreds saw the first presentation of the pageant Thursday afternoon, in which a cast of 2,500 participated, and will remain for a second opportunity to view the vivid enactment of state history, while hundreds of others are expected to see the final showing.

The ball, given in honor of President Monroe on the occasion of his visit to Savannah in 1819, will be reproduced in minute detail. Judge Alexander Radcliffe MacDonnell will represent President Monroe, while other prominent residents of Savannah will represent others of the presidential party and of the numerous prominent persons of the past who were in attendance. Costumes of the early 19th century will be worn.

President Monroe, fifth president of the United States, came here to witness the sailing of the S. S. Savannah, first steamship to cross the Atlantic. He was the guest of William Scarborough, merchant prince of the city, and was magnificently entertained at the Scarborough mansion.

The president arrived in Savannah May 8, 1819 and remained here five days.

Bert Hinkler's Body Found Near Florence
FLORENCE, Italy, April 28.—(AP)—The charred body of Bert Hinkler, Australian airman lost last January in a projected England-to-Australia flight, was found today in the wreckage of his airplane.

The airman's passport was found on the body, thus removing the last trace of doubt about the identification.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today sent to the senate the nominations of Warren Delano Robbins, of New York, as minister to Canada, and Robert Hayes Gore, Florida publisher, as governor of Puerto Rico.

The appointment of Robert M. Cooper as collector of internal revenue for South Carolina was advocated today by the state's two democratic senators—Byrnes and Smith.

New Type Pine Pulp Paper Is Used For Printing North Georgia News

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—Copies of the North Georgia News, a weekly newspaper published at Blairsville, were displayed here today as proof that newspaper can be made of various sorts of Georgia pine pulp.

The News was printed on paper made of pine Virginia trees in the experimental laboratory of Dr. Charles Herty.

Previously, Dr. Herty had met with success in making newsprint of every other species of Georgia pine—loblolly, slash, long leaf, The Soperon (Ga.) News was the first paper to be printed on newsprint made of Georgia pine pulp other than pine Virginia.

The pine Virginia trees grow in north Georgia and were the latest to be tested. Dr. Herty said they make even a finer grade and a stronger paper than some other types of pine. J. P. Davenport, editor of the North Georgia News, had the trees cut in the Blairsville section and sent them to the laboratory.

SWANSON ANNOUNCES NAVY COMMAND SHIFTS
WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—Changes in 24 of the navy's highest commands afloat and ashore were ordered today by Secretary Swanson, supplementing assignments announced earlier which included designation of Vice Admiral William H. Standley to succeed Admiral William V. Pratt as chief of naval operations.

The changes included: Admiral Richard H. Leigh, of Grenada, Miss., commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, will revert to rear admiral and become a member of the navy general board.

Rear Admiral Thomas J. Senn, of Greenville, Miss., commander of the clement naval district at San Diego, will command the fleet base force, succeeding Rear Admiral H. H. Hough, of New York city, who becomes commander of the Boston navy yard.

Rear Admiral Walton R. Sexton, of Monmouth, Ill., now assistant to the chief of naval operations, will command Battleship Division 1, flagship U. S. S. Texas, relieving Rear Admiral F. H. Brumby, of Athens, Ga., who becomes commander of the scouting fleet. Admiral Sexton will step up to command of all battleships when Standley becomes chief of naval operations.

Rear Admiral Joseph K. Tausig, of Norfolk, Va., now chief of staff to the commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, will succeed Sexton in the operations bureau.

Rear Admiral Henry Ellis Lackey, of Norfolk, Va., on the Pacific coast section of the board of inspection and survey, will become commander of Cruiser Division 4, the scouting force, relieving Rear Admiral William T. Tarrant, of Norfolk, who will become commander of the fifteenth naval district, Canal Zone.

Captain Sinclair Gannon, of Abilene, Texas, commanding the naval training station, San Diego, will command the special service squadron operating in Central American waters, succeeding Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, of Atlanta, ordered to the general board.

Captain John D. Wainwright, of Philadelphia, now at the army war college, Washington, will be commander of the Yangtze patrol of the Asiatic fleet, succeeding Rear Admiral Yancy W. Thibault, of Charleston, S. C., who will command the Mare Island (Cal.) navy yard.

The changes will take place during the course of this year, not all immediately. Captains named in the changes already have been selected for promotion to rear admirals.

NEW RAILWAY BILL OPPOSED BY LABOR

Road Unions Fear Economy Ax Will Wipe Out Whole Communities.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—Labor, fearful that thousands of railway workers will be driven to the bread lines, today announced its opposition to the railway reorganization bill now on President Roosevelt's desk awaiting approval and transmission to congress.

Though the legislation—it proposes a one to two-year suspension of anti-trust laws as far as rails are concerned, and creates a federal co-ordinator to rehabilitate and trim the railroad systems—contains various safeguards for labor, it was attacked vigorously today in a statement from the Railway Labor Executives' Association, which said:

"We see no justification for drastic reductions of essential transportation service in order that unearned interest may be paid on idle capital. In New York, railway officials took the view that the concentrated authority of the state in the hands of a co-ordinator entirely on who is named co-ordinator. They were quick to point out, however, that the required consultation with labor committees and unneeded services and to consolidate terminal activities. He will have power to pass on railroad loan applications and to direct the Reconstruction Corporation. This is designed to force rails to squeeze down their capitalization to actual working needs.

The co-ordinator's big job under the bill will be to eliminate duplicating services of competing lines and unneeded services and to consolidate terminal activities. He will have power to pass on railroad loan applications and to direct the Reconstruction Corporation. This is designed to force rails to squeeze down their capitalization to actual working needs.

Appeals Not Expected.

Though the co-ordinator's orders could be appealed to the interstate commerce commission, the rail executives were not inclined to believe there would be much overriding of his directions. They said the bill would give the co-ordinator probably would be chosen from the present commission and that he will consult with the commission before making any sweeping recommendations. The measure would give the co-ordinator the right to suspend the operation of the railroad laws for a week now, but the rush of international conferences has made it impossible for him to give it time. He is expected, however, to get it on the way to congress soon.

The labor safeguards in the bill are:

Protection of all labor rights; creation of labor boards to consult with the co-ordinator; reservation of the rights to collective bargaining and maintenance of the railway labor laws; the bill would not only cut off unneeded crews here and there but in the elimination of unneeded services it would wipe out the employment of whole railroad communities.

CO-ORDINATOR TO HAVE POWERS FOR ONE YEAR

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—A Washington dispatch to the New York Times says the railroad bill now under consideration by President Roosevelt gives a proposed federal co-ordinator of transportation power to relieve the railroads from the operation of the anti-trust laws, the interstate commerce act and state and federal laws for an emergency period of one year.

The dispatch says that unless there is further delay and amendments are made, the president will forward the bill to congress by Saturday or Monday.

The Association of Railway Labor Executives was called to meet today to consider the bill and decide upon its policy.

The Times prints the following as the highlights of the bill:

(1) The office of federal co-ordinator of transportation is created, the co-ordinator to be appointed by the president with the advice and consent of the senate, or designated by the president from the ranks of the interstate commerce commission.

(2) The co-ordinator, under the president, will have the power to relieve the railroads from the operation of the anti-trust laws, the interstate commerce commission act and state and federal laws for an emergency period of one year.

(3) The railroads of the country are to be divided by the co-ordinator into three groups, eastern, southern and western, with each group and its co-ordinator to be composed of five members each, the co-ordinators to be selected by the railroads themselves, the vote in the selection of the representatives to be based on the mileage of the railroads involved.

(4) The regional committees shall encourage and promote the action by the carriers which will avoid unnecessary duplication of services, promote financial reorganization to reduce fixed charges and control accessory services such as air and bus lines, so that railroad earnings may be unduly impaired.

(5) The co-ordinator will have the power to issue such orders for the railroads themselves, the vote in the selection of the representatives to be based on the mileage of the railroads involved.

(6) Failing action by the regional committees, the co-ordinator will have the power to issue such orders for the railroads themselves, the vote in the selection of the representatives to be based on the mileage of the railroads involved.

(7) Appeal from orders of the co-ordinator may be made to the interstate commerce commission.

The New York Herald-Tribune, in another Washington dispatch, suggested that Joseph B. Eastman, of the interstate commerce commission, was a likely choice as co-ordinator.

It added, however, that he was understood to have recommended Charles D. Mahaffie, another commission member.

Tax Assessing Method Is Attacked in Court

An attack on the city's method of assessing taxes on real estate was launched in superior court Friday by W. R. Cox, owner of a corner lot at Peachtree and Fifth streets, when he sought a mandamus action to force the city tax assessors to rescind their assessment of this property and make a new one.

Judge Virgil B. Moore signed an order for J. C. Little, Leo Suddeth and Harry Perkins, city tax assessors, to show cause before him why this should not be done. Cox is represented by the law firm of Tye, Thomson & Tye.

The action alleges that the assessors have assessed the property at $20,000 for 1933, not on a basis of its cash market value, but that they "took into consideration the need of the city to raise a certain amount of revenue." Cox asks that this 1933 assessment be thrown out and the property reassessed at its cash market value.

City assessor Frank A. McArthur had no comment to make.

Grand Jury Presentments

In the Superior Court, Fulton County, Georgia, March-April Term, 1933.

Honorable Judges: C. Pomeroy, presiding, First Criminal Division.

Fulton Superior Court, March-April Term, 1933. Your honorable court respectfully follows its general presentments as follows:

The special presentments filed by this body under dates of April 10, 1933, and April 20, 1933, set forth certain conditions existing and certain specific recommendations with reference to those conditions. A further intensive study of county affairs since these presentments were filed does not lead this body to believe that any changes in its recommendations are necessary.

This body, through regularly appointed committees, has made a most careful and thorough investigation of the condition of the county, and has found that the county is in a state of financial distress, and that the county is in a state of financial distress, and that the county is in a state of financial distress.

State Clubwomen Are Instrumental In Keeping $2,000,000 In Georgia

By BESSIE S. STAFFORD, Editor of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 28.—The most stimulating work in regard to the live-at-home program, adopted by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs at the 1932 convention held in Columbus, was that state clubwomen were instrumental in keeping $2,000,000 from going out of Georgia for farm commodities during the past year. The report was made by Miss Katherine Lanier, of Atlanta, co-chairman of agricultural co-operation in Georgia Federation at Friday's session of the fifth biennial council held in the DeSoto hotel in Savannah. The information emanated from the combined report of Georgia Bankers' Association and the extension forces of the University of Georgia.

For the third consecutive year Georgia leads the nation in banker-farmer activities, and Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs has the privilege of sharing in the accomplishment of this record. The contest was decided under the scoring system and Georgia was accredited 1,000 out of a possible 1,000 points, making a perfect score. Georgia's success since 1929, Georgia leaders during the past year launched a program to establish home markets for the products of Georgia. The program was to keep at home part of the $48,000,000 which was sent out of Georgia for food and feed stuffs in 1931.

Georgia bankers took the initiative with the federated women, with the agricultural extension service of the state joining hands with the federated women to develop an orderly and systematic production and flow of farm commodities to market. A recent survey shows that more than $2,000,000 has been conserved at home that would otherwise have gone out of the state in former years.

Junior Department Goal.

The goal of the junior department functioning under Mrs. T. O. Taylor, Jr., of Euston, and Mrs. Stewart D. Brown, of Euston, as chairman and co-chairman, is to establish a junior department in every senior club in Georgia Federation. This department was elevated from that of a committee by General Federation of Women's Clubs at the 1932 convention held at the University of Georgia. The department's main objective for the year, the completion of the Stewart D. Brown scholarship fund at Friday's session. The prize of $10, offered to the club giving the greatest amount to the scholarship, was won by Euston Junior Club, of which Mrs. Thomas Bond is president.

The Dora Hill loving cup, offered to the district for most outstanding junior department, was won by the third time by the Seventh District, of which Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, is president. General Federation does not limit the scope of junior activities, and girls of all ages can find something in Junior Club work that will be of interest. Georgia Federation's Junior Clubs are in the form of a club in miniature form, and members are working seriously and earnestly to render service as citizens. As the Junior department is a part of the Georgia Federation, the question of dues and classification according to age has not been settled. The method of organization is a local matter, as the Junior department is a part of the Georgia Federation, the question of dues and classification according to age has not been settled. The method of organization is a local matter, as the Junior department is a part of the Georgia Federation, the question of dues and classification according to age has not been settled.

At present there are 55 junior clubs in the federation. The junior department is significant of the last episode in the development of the Georgia Federation. "Today's Heritage—Tomorrow's Endowment." Three-minute discussions were given on the following subjects: "What a Junior Club Means to a Young Matron," Mrs. H. C. Standard, Washington; "The Value of a Junior Club to Girl Scouts," Mrs. A. N. Atwood, Atlanta; "What a Junior Club Means to a Girl in College," Miss Jean Armstrong, Crawford; "What a Club Means to a High School Girl," Miss Jeanette Green, Zebulon; "What Juniors Mean to Tallulah Falls Schools," Mrs. J. K. Outley, Atlanta; and "The Value of Juniors to the State," Mrs. H. M. Franklin, Tennille.

Gerald Chan Sieg, a young Chinese woman who was born in Savannah, and is an honor graduate of the local high school, read a number of her poems. She has been recognized by the Savannah Poetry Society, and received honor awards from the society. She is married, has two small children, and is exceedingly attractive, and her appearance added a colorful note to the junior department program.

Educational Program.

The educational work of the federation is carried on effectively through its twin foundations, the Tallulah Falls school and student aid foundation, affectionately termed the Heavenly Twins. For the past two years Georgia boys and girls have been privileged to receive adequate education through these channels, and the foundation hour was, as usual, an important phase of the business meeting.

Mrs. John K. Outley, of Atlanta, president of the board of trustees of the school, stated that the foundation school at Tallulah, would soon conclude its most successful year of service with the largest student body, best equipped facilities, and the most important phase of the business meeting. Mrs. John K. Outley, of Atlanta, president of the board of trustees of the school, stated that the foundation school at Tallulah, would soon conclude its most successful year of service with the largest student body, best equipped facilities, and the most important phase of the business meeting.

Mrs. Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, chairman of student aid foundation, reported that $50,000 of the fund received less than $5,000, not less than 25 girls receiving loans. One district had 93 girls receiving $16,000 in loans for educational purposes. The fund was distributed by the foundation, and Miss Marion Woodward, Misses Harold Wey and Willis Ragan, of Atlanta, which presents illuminating facts concerning student aid and achievement. Tribute was paid to Misses A. V. Guide Sr., John K. Outley, John S. Spalding and E. M. Helbig, of Atlanta, for their assistance in the work of the foundation, made the financial report.

Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, state chairman of Ella F. White memorial endowment fund of more than $100,000, urged clubs to contribute the 75 cents per capita necessary to complete the fund. This endowment is a memorial to the late Mrs. Harry White, of Athens, a former president, and has proven a valuable financial aid to the federation.

Institute Theme.

"Vitamin in the Diet of Nation, State and Club," will be the theme of the club institute to be held July 11-12 at the summer school of the University of Georgia. Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brocton, Mass.,

Charter Members Of Edgewood Society Honored

Four surviving charter members of Edgewood Baptist Church's Women's Missionary Society were honored guests at the thirtieth anniversary celebration of its founding yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Paul Hull, 340 Mayson avenue.

These four women, Mrs. C. M. Riser, Mrs. M. Blankenship, Mrs. A. H. Benning and Miss Andy Holliday, recalled the days of the founding of the society which developed from the original mission into the present Edgewood Baptist church.

The meeting also was a memorial to the late Dr. Virgil C. Norcross, the church's fourth pastor, under whose direction the present church structure at Mayson avenue and Treason street was built.

This distinguished minister was the son of the late Jonathan Norcross, pioneer Atlanta, who lived here when the city was known as Marthasville and was the father of the late Paul Norcross.

Mrs. Hull's mother, the late Mrs. Fannie Hull, was also one of the charter members of the society. Other deceased charter members are Mrs. J. S. Arnett, Mrs. Jack Arnett, Tom Cain, Mrs. A. B. Long and Mrs. Fitzgerald.

Mrs. J. S. Carroll is the present president of the society and Dr. Lester A. Brown, former president of Cox College, is pastor of the church. Rev. L. B. Cranford was pastor for many years immediately preceding Dr. J. W. Brown, who recently assumed the pastorate.

The HONEYMOON MURDER

BY CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Perilla Fairfax and Corey Malden are married at the Long Island summer home of John Lovell, her stepfather. Tony Gaskell, Philadelphia lawyer, is best man, and Bob Cole, a friend of Malcolm Fairfax, Perilla's brother, is usher. Corey, whose home is in Richmond, is very wealthy. He is 38 and Perilla only 24, but it is a true love match. The night before the wedding, Malcolm, who has a headache and asks for aspirin, Tony produces some white tablets, which he says are better, and Corey also takes one. Bob Cole recalls to Perilla his threat that if she marries anyone else he will kill her. The bridegroom and himself, but her mother says Bob is only teasing her. The bride couple are entertained elaborately two days later at Washington, where they stop en route by motor car to Richmond. While Perilla is dancing, her partner makes a disparaging remark about Corey's mother. She pleads fatigue. Corey makes her excuses, and when they reach their hotel, Corey takes her in his arms and is saying "Darling, you won't like my mother; she isn't lovable," when he drops to the floor dead. She summons her father, Malcolm, who comes by plane. A physician says he will give a certificate stating that death was the result of natural causes. When Perilla and Mr. Lovell arrive at Malden's home late that day, Mrs. Malden's greeting to Perilla is, "You murdered him." That night she enters Perilla's room by a balcony window. When Malcolm's old woman's nurse removes her, when Malcolm sends for him. She professes friendship when Malcolm threatens her with the madhouse. Farman, her Richmond lawyer, does not disguise his suspicions. NOW GO ON WITH THIS STORY.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

"I can tell you about that," she said. "It belongs to Madame Malden, not to my mistress. Madame Malden brought it last night into Mrs. Malden's room, and left it there. She was about to show its contents into Miss Perilla's glass of drinking water, when I stopped her. The nurse, Miss Seymour, can swear to this—if she chooses to do so."

"Call Miss Seymour," said Garth, and the nurse was called.

"Yes," she said, casually. "I believe Madame Malden did step into Mrs. Malden's room last night—and she may have had a parcel in her hand."

"I think," Garth said, in rather stern tones, "we may end this conference."

This was done, but Malcolm speaking low to Dr. Spurgeon, said, "What is it?"

And gravely, the doctor replied, in the same low tone, "Cyanide."

It was the following Tuesday before Perilla Malden found herself entirely. The motor car, whose speed was retarded by Lovell's direction, reached New York on Sunday, and they went directly to the Lovell's city apartment. Ellen Lovell and Jane had made everything bright and pleasant for the arrival of Perilla, and both were surprised when the girl was brought in in a state of such utter exhaustion.

The long and weary motor ride, after the distressing stay at Malden house, had so taken it out of Perilla that at the doctor's orders she went to bed and stayed there until fully recuperated.

And that time had come. "All right now, mother," she said. "I want to get up and dress and oh, mother, there's so much to tell you. And first of all, here's a shocker for you. I'm going to finish up the work on the apartment, and get into it as soon as I can. Don't oppose me, I'm too ill to fight, but plenty well enough to do what I want to."

"We won't fight you, dear, and you can move in just as soon as we can get things ready. Won't you be lonely there? Do you plan to have any one with you?"

"I do," Perilla gave her mother a dubious glance. "I plan to have—Jane."

"Jane? Merciful heavens, what do you think I'm going to do? I can't get along without Jane."

"Now, yes, you can. Let's say, for a month or two, anyway. She can run around here when you want her specially. And maybe she can get you another golden girl such as she."

"Well, we'll see about it," and Mrs. Lovell sighed. Perilla knew she had won her point, so she dropped the subject.

"Now, we'll have luncheon," she ordered, "and then we'll have what I find they call a conference. Oh, mother, it's all too dreadful! Don't pity me, or even sympathize; if you do, I'll break up."

The two tactful women quite understood this and no reference was made to matters at Malden House, until Perilla chose to make it.

Perilla was so near collapse that it seemed no hardship to remain in bed. When she felt equal to the strain she took her mother and Jane up to her own little boudoir and told them the whole story.

Mr. Lovell and Malcolm came in the late afternoon, having spent the night before with Garth in his Philadelphia home.

"A splendid man, that Garth," declared Lovell. "He's taken over all of Perilla's business, and she couldn't have a better lawyer. You won't have to worry about anything, dear."

"Not anything, Dad?"

"I hope not. We won't go into matters now."

"Better have it out, Dad," said Malcolm, who well knew Perilla's persistency.

"Tell 'em what you like, Dad. Me for a bath and a bit of rest," he said as he left them to make it.

"Was there any more talk of—of—?" but Perilla couldn't go on.

"Nothing but. However, I think we put the kibosh on that. You must know, mother and Jane, that Corey's mother is not a—well, not an affable person. And she has a complex or whatever you call those things, that Pri—night as well as say it right out—that Pri killed Corey. Don't jump, Jane. Perilla has heard this and discounted it."

"The old lady—I wish I could draw her picture for you—well I had to threaten her with all the torments of the inferno, before she would let up on it. And I did have her stopped, she made up with Perilla, and promised to lead a better life, when, after the funeral, she somehow got going again."

"Oh, Malcolm, did she?" cried Perilla. "What did she do?"

"Well, to begin with, she vowed that packet of cyanide was yours, and of course we all know it was hers, and she said you meant to kill her with it, and we know she meant to kill you with it."

"And you let her put it over?"

"Well, see here, Jane. My stand is that she is touched, loony, off her but, whatever you like to call it, but they look upon her as sane. And here's her platform. She says, and there be those who half agree with her, since Perilla was alone in that hotel room with Corey, and as Corey was declared sound in mind and limb by competent doctors, that the only theory is that Perilla, in some manner and for some reason, killed him in some mysterious way."

"But," said Mrs. Lovell, in her soft voice, "why doesn't Perilla get a lawyer and face this slander—for that's what it is?"

"Yes, Mummie, but here's the point. If Perilla takes any notice of this slander, any notice at all, it gives it strength and a certain possibility, which cannot be ignored. That's why I went at the old lady hammer and tongs to scare her about the madhouse, which is really where she belongs."

"Not really, Mal," Perilla said. "I only wish she did. But she is sane, the doctors declare, and a strong hate or even an unfounded suspicion cannot be regarded as insanity."

"What are you going to do about it?" asked Jane.

"Nothing for the moment. In fact, the longer we remain silent, Garth says, the more chance of her fury blowing over."

"But how did she get stirred up again?" Perilla wanted to know. "She was lovely to me when I left her."

Malcolm drew a deep sigh. "It's all that Farman person," he said. "If he weren't in the thing we could manage all right."

"Why is he down on me?" and Perilla's eyes flashed. "He's a Jew, the longer we remain silent, Garth says, the more chance of her fury blowing over."

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—The administration's new railroad bill, and other measures simmering on congressional fires, failed to stimulate the bond market today and prices generally shifted about uncertainly in a narrow range.

The trading volume reflected the cautious deliberation of investors by dividing to relatively low sales of total of $10,000,000 par value, while the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was unchanged. This average had advanced on each of the eight previous sessions.

Railway issues were decidedly irregular. Gains of a point or more were recorded by some issues of Atlantic Coast Line, Cuba Northern, Louisville & Nashville, Union Pacific and others. Southern Railway consolidated 6 1/2s were heavily traded for a gain of 1 1/2 points and Washburn first 5s were up 4. On the other hand, bonds of Chesapeake Corporation, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio declined.

There was little either way in the utilities and industrials. International Telephone rallied for a point or more while Postal Telegraph 5s showed the largest turnover of any corporation issue with a gain of 1 1/2 points. Bonds of Tobacco Products were heavy.

TARZAN THE APE MAN No. 30

As the strange cry from the unknown creature was answered by other throats, the natives fell into confusion. They squatted on the ground, moaning, muttering together and hiding their faces. Holt looked back. Riano was standing helplessly beside the safari.

Mrs. Cannon Fights Bank's Action To Have Reynolds' Will Dissolved

CONCORD, N. C., April 28.—(AP)—Smith Reynolds' will, made in New York after his troubled marital life with Anne Cannon had ended but before he married Libby Holman, figured prominently today in the hearing before Judge Wilson Warlick upon disposition of the $200,000,000 fortune left by the young tobacco heir, who was shot to death at Winston-Salem last summer.

E. S. Parker, Greensboro attorney for Mrs. Anne L. Cannon, guardian of Anne Cannon Reynolds, second, in opposing a motion by the Cabarrus Bank & Trust Co., a co-guardian, seeking to invalidate a renunciation agreement made for little Anne when her parents agreed to a divorce, declared the will might be held legal, and that if so, the inheritance of the child, would be jeopardized.

On the other hand, John M. Robinson, Charlotte attorney for the bank, asserted that the will was invalid because it could be established that young Reynolds was not a resident and citizen of New York.

Robinson's client asked Judge Warlick to direct Mrs. Cannon, mother of the first Mrs. Reynolds and grandmother of the ward, to participate in an action to have declared null and void a pre-divorce agreement made in Winston-Salem August 4, 1931, by which the claims of baby Anne to her father's estate were renounced for $500,000. The same agreement provided a $500,000 settlement for the child's mother, but this is not questioned.

In reply, Mrs. Cannon asserted that the agreement was made in good faith, and further, that her grandchild's right to the $500,000 trust fund, as well as to a $500,000 inheritance provided for by her father's will and $1,500,000 allotted from her father's estate under a recent agreement among the Reynolds, Cannon and Holman families, might be endangered if the original pre-divorce agreement were attacked.

Parker pointed out that Reynolds' will, made in New York August 21, 1931, carried a clause providing for forfeiture of all claims by any beneficiary instituting a legal contest, should that clause be sustained, he argued, little Anne must lose all that she stands to obtain from the Reynolds' estate.

Robinson argued that the bank as a legal guardian could not properly see its ward lose her full rights in the father's estate. The bank contends, he said, that the daughter of young Reynolds, and the son born to Libby Holman in January, should each receive half of the full estate, or about $1,000,000 each.

W. N. Reynolds, uncle and guardian of Smith Reynolds, and Mrs. Anne Cannon Reynolds Smith, the first wife, filed affidavits today supporting the contention of Mrs. Cannon that the pre-divorce agreement should be affirmed.

The affidavit of Reynolds revealed that his nephew had "vigorously opposed" the settlement of a substantial sum upon his first wife and child, and announced his intention of cutting them off from further receipts by a will, after he had finally consented to the establishment of the trust funds aggregating $1,000,000.

In his argument, Parker pointed out that young Reynolds apparently was acting upon this motive when he made the New York will 17 days after the August 4 settlement in 1931.

Mrs. Smith's affidavit corroborated this account, and she further deplored the effort of the Cabarrus Bank and Trust Company to set aside the pre-divorce agreement.

The course of the bank, it said, will "inevitably affect the honor and good name" of herself, her child, and her child's father.

The bank has contended that the pre-divorce agreement deprived little Anne of the bulk of her share in the estate, and that under the law, no person had a right to waive her claims.

Mrs. Cannon, in effect, has taken the position that the agreement was made to conserve the interests of the child and its mother because of young Reynolds' known intention to disinherit her.

The hearing was adjourned today until Monday morning.

More U. S. Funds For Roads Sought

The breach between Governor Talmadge and the highway commission remained unchanged Friday as the governor absented himself from the capitol and the highway officials turned their thoughts to getting more federal aid for Georgia roads.

Captain J. W. Barnett, chairman of the highway commission, said Friday that the department would proceed as far as possible with its work without drawing on the treasury for funds.

Governor Talmadge Thursday approved the quarterly budget of the highway department, but because he ordered the names of Chief Engineer B. P. McWhorter and four other officials stricken from the pay roll, the commission will not draw on the budget.

Employees of the highway department have not been paid since April 1. Governor Talmadge was in Mill Jekyllville Friday inspecting the state hospital with a special committee of the board of control.

RUNNING FROM POLICE, BOY, 12, HURT IN FALL

Seeking to escape police, Billie Martin, 12, of 263 Pulliam street, received a badly broken arm in a fall from the top of a fence Friday afternoon, according to police reports.

Billie, with 12 or 15 other boys, was playing on the roof of a house at Woodward avenue and Pulliam street, police said. Called by neighbors, officers attempted to catch several of the boys but all escaped except Billie, who in climbing a high fence, fell to the ground. He was taken to Grady hospital by police.

Others treated at the hospital during the day for injuries received in various other accidents were: C. L. Parker, 22, of 680 Bryan street, bitten by dog he attempted to catch in downtown Atlanta.

Ray Newman, 8, of 2110 Peachtree road, right arm fractured in fall. His mother, Mrs. J. R. Newman, 32, fainting while at the hospital and also was treated.

H. H. Donohoe, 25, of 554 Ira street, finger on left hand broken catching baseball.

Stormy Idaho Solon Questions U. S. Right To Enforce Gold Decree

By HARRY FERGUSON. WASHINGTON, April 28.—(UP)—Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, held his first major assault on the Roosevelt administration today when he delivered a scathing speech denouncing the president's policy of making gold hoarding a criminal offense.

With his voice rising in anger, he denounced open defiance of the federal government on this issue. To his assistance came another veteran republican, Senator Norris, Nebraska.

Debate was proceeding calmly on the inflation amendment to the farm relief bill, when Borah interrupted. He arose slowly from his chair in the third row, fixed his glasses on his nose and demanded to know why laws against gold hoarding were necessary in a nation that had gone off the gold standard.

"So far as I am concerned," he said, "if I had $5,000 in gold I would tell the government to come and try to get it."

The under-current of conversation on the senate floor was still as senators turned to listen to the brown-clad figure who is as quick to denounce a republican president as he is a democratic one.

Borah's battle today was in behalf of the man who feels his money is unsafe in banks and prefers to keep it at home. He dwelt on the fear of the federal government that the hearts of most citizens were in the hands of the federal government.

"Only through guarantee of bank deposits will we ever be able to get out of hiding. One of the most effective ways we could put money into circulation would be to arrange the release of the money now held in frozen banks. That would put $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 into circulation immediately."

"More difficult for me to understand is the right of the government to force citizens to bring in their money and deposit it in banks and other places where there is no assurance they will ever get it back."

Norris took the same line of argument and indirectly came out in favor of government guarantee of bank deposits—a measure Borah has had under consideration for some time.

"I do not believe," Norris said, "that the government has any right nor do I believe any law passed by congress can require any citizen to deposit his money anywhere. We have found in recent days that the right to get your money out of a bank does not depend on the wishes of the men who operate the banks."

"The recent moratorium closed all the banks. All laws on earth—unless there be some law that guarantees the depositor the privilege of getting his money when he wants it—will not be of any avail."

The government went ahead tonight with plans to prosecute persons who have not surrendered gold in excess of $100 to the banks or the treasury by Monday.

With only two more business days of grace, more than $700,000,000 of the country's monetary gold stocks of $4,310,000,000 rested in gold hoards here or in Europe or was still circulating as money.

Under an order issued by President Roosevelt on April 5, a fine of $10,000 or ten years' imprisonment, or both, may be imposed upon persons

Ann Harding Visits Here On Plane Trip to Havana

Ann Harding, screen actress, who emphatically announces that she is not going to marry her leading man, Alexander Kirkland, her traveling companion, spent Friday night in Atlanta and this morning will continue on her way to Havana, Cuba, by plane. The two and Miss Harding's secretary arrived Friday afternoon at Candler field in an American Airways plane from Los Angeles.

Reports that Miss Harding was constantly seen in the company of Mr. Kirkland in Hollywood and the announcement of the vacation trip to Cuba led reporters to ask if they are to be married. Both denied any such intention and asserted that the trip is "just for a vacation." Miss Harding and Kirkland will go from Atlanta to Miami, Fla., and thence to Havana.

COVENANT CHURCH TO OBSERVE BIRTHDAY

The Covenant Presbyterian church, located at the corner of Peachtree road and Terrace drive, will celebrate on Sunday the 32d anniversary of the founding of the church. Dr. Herman L. Turner is the pastor.

The Rev. George H. Mack, D. D., started the work of the founding of what was then the First Cumberland Presbyterian church in May, 1901, and in April, 1904, the first church building was completed and the dedication services were held.

More than 5,000 members of the church have held the pastorate. In 1907 the name of the church was changed to the Harris Street Presbyterian church.

During the World War the Harris Street church became noted for its Saturday night services and entertainments on all sides and the present church building was built.

The first services in the present building were held in April, 1923, and the name changed to the Covenant Presbyterian church, with Dr. George H. Mack, who first founded the church, as pastor.

Dr. Herman L. Turner, the present pastor, was called to the Covenant Presbyterian church of Birmingham, Ala., on October 1, 1932. From that date forward the church has made progress in every department and more than 200 new members have been added to its membership.

Police Friday night were holding Mrs. Ruby Grubbs, 26, and Mrs. Sarah Alexander, 39, of 289 Rawson street, on suspicion in connection with recovery of an automobile alleged to have been stolen from R. A. Moore, of 13 Shenandoah avenue, April 18. The two women were not

W.C.T.U. Women Decline Role of Speech-Makers

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 28.—(AP)—Speech making is a male prerogative, women of the Jefferson county W. C. T. U. have decided in yielding the last word in the debate leading up to the July 18 prohibition referendum election in this county to the men.

Though the women endorsed the anti-temperance candidate to this state's referendum August 1, they declined to follow the request of the Rev. William Roy Jordan, member of the Methodist conference committee on temperance and morals, that they "go over the county and make speeches," said Mrs. J. T. Mayfield in expressing the sentiment of the group. Mrs. Mayfield declined an offer of the presidency of the organization.

ATTACK ON 5-DAY WEEK CONTINUED BY LABOR

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—A continuing parade of witnesses before the house labor committee today piled up objections to numerous testimony of the last few days before the establishment of minimum wage schedules and for federal control of production and hours of work.

The secretary of labor kept in close touch with developments. When witnesses went to the White House cabinet meeting this afternoon, she took along for the president a summary of the testimony of the last few days before the house committee. At Miss Perkins' office it was said that she was "gratified by the volume of mail" approving her plan.

In today's hearings, Chairman Connery announced that the committee would be ready to take up the bill in executive session Friday or Saturday. He agreed with many other committee members that some change should be made in the bill so it would require manufacturers doing both interstate and intrastate business, to comply with the proposed 30-hour work week maximum. It now applies only to interstate concerns.

Another opponent of the legislation was William Goldman, of New York, president of the Clothing Manufacturers' Research Board, who said: "I don't see how we could continue to operate as a clothing manufacturer under this bill."

John D. Cockrell, vice president of the Collins & Aikman, textile manufacturers in North Carolina, Rhode Island and New York, approved a 32-hour week, but suggested it be made 32 hours to workers could put in all their time in four eight-hour days.

The 32-hour week, he testified, would increase cost 25 per cent and, if wages were maintained, allow the textile worker "45 per cent in more real dollars than in 1912."
